Finding a Master’s Thesis or Doctoral Dissertation
Karen E. Kalnins
Reference Librarian
Oklahoma City University Law Library
Last updated 10/07

Introduction
Using a master’s thesis or doctoral dissertation can be helpful when researching a topic because that student has already completed extensive original research. While not considered primary legal authority, theses or dissertations can assist you when writing a law review article or research paper.

Once you have found a citation or other information about a master’s thesis or doctoral dissertation your next step is to locate the actual item.

OCU Law Library Resources
The OCU Law Library has electronic resources available to assist you with your search for theses and dissertations.

Worldcat-If you have specific information about the thesis or dissertation, then you can search and request items via Interlibrary loan from this database. You can access this database from the library’s Web site.

Hein’s Listing of Legal Theses and Dissertations-Only available at the OCU Law Library, you can search this database for information about theses and dissertations published at law schools.

UMI Dissertations search- From this portal you can search and purchase dissertations published in the U.S. http://wwwlib.umi.com/dxweb/gateway

Other university sites- Some universities have set up their own searchable theses and dissertation databases. To access these, you must go to the specific university and see if they have an accessible and searchable catalog of electronic theses and dissertations.

General Internet search- If you have searched in all possible databases and cannot find the thesis or dissertation you need, try doing a general Internet search using your favorite search engine.

Steps to take when looking for a thesis or dissertation
First, you must find a thesis or dissertation that fits your topic from a bibliography or database. The OCU Law Library has the American Bar Foundation Index to Legal Theses 1961-63 at KF1.A48. The OCU Law Library has Hein’s Listing of Legal Theses and Dissertations available electronically in the OCU law library.
You can also search ProQuest Dissertations or Dissertation Abstracts. Although the OCU Law Library does not subscribe to these databases, you may be able to access Dissertation Abstracts at the University of Oklahoma or Oklahoma State University. Please contact the OU and OSU libraries to see if on-campus access is available.

If you cannot access either dissertation database, you can search in an academic union catalog (a joint library catalog of various academic institutions), Worldcat (the world catalog), or a freely available electronic thesis database such as the one set up by California Technical University http://etd.caltech.edu/ETD-db/ETD-browse/browse?first_letter=all. Lastly, remember to check Dissertation Express or UMI at http://wwwlib.umi.com/dxweb/gateway

Second, after you have located a relevant thesis or dissertation you will need to find the hard copy or full-text electronic version. Finding this may be complex or simple, depending on where the thesis or dissertation was published, if you can request it via Interlibrary loan, or if it is available for purchase.

a. To submit an Interlibrary loan request, go to the OCU Library Home page and select databases, then choose Worldcat. From here, you can search for and request the thesis or dissertation if it appears in the catalog. If you cannot find the title or author in Worldcat, consult a librarian and we will assist you.

b. If it is not available through Interlibrary loan, you can suggest that the library purchase it. You can submit your suggestions through the suggestion box at http://www.okcu.edu/law/lawlib/suggestion.php

c. If you want to keep the thesis or dissertation then purchase it, if available. If you cannot order directly from the university, try Dissertation Express or UMI at http://wwwlib.umi.com/dxweb/gateway

Foreign Theses and Dissertations

Finding a foreign thesis or dissertation may prove slightly more challenging than one published in the U.S. First, you need to know in what language or country that thesis or dissertation was published. Once you know this, you can look for a search portal in that language, from that country, or from a specific university in that country. Fortunately, some countries have established searchable databases for students’ theses and dissertations.

Below are some foreign country/language thesis and dissertation portals.

Center for Research Libraries-Foreign Doctoral Dissertations

Canada

Theses Canada is a searchable portal for Canadian theses. From this page you can search all theses published in Canada and choose to borrow or purchase the one you need.
http://www.collectionscanada.ca/thesescanada/s4-230-e.html

Australia

Australasian Digital Theses Program provides a list of all the universities in Australia. You can perform a search of theses and dissertations published in Australia and New Zealand from this site.
http://adt.caul.edu.au/

France

SUDOC You can search this database of French dissertations by selecting catalogue.

TEL is a multidisciplinary thesis server or serveur de these multidisciplinaire that you can search for a French language thesis or dissertation.
http://tel.archives-ouvertes.fr/

German

German dissertations online gives you information about how to order German dissertations.
http://www.dissonline.de/

Deutsche National Bibliothek is the German National Library which has an online searchable catalog.
http://www.d-nb.de/

Die Oesterreichische Bibliothekenverbund und Service offers you the ability to search theses and dissertations published in Austria.
http://www.obvsg.at/services/dissertationsdatenbank/

Italian

Tesionline lets you search for Italian language theses and dissertations.
http://www.tesionline.it/ricerca/ricerca.asp

Portuguese

University of Coimbra gives you the ability to search for dissertations published at the University of Coimbra.
http://www.uc.pt/sdp/Teses/

DiTeD provides a searchable database of Portuguese dissertations and theses.
http://dited.bn.pt/

IBICT is a searchable database of theses and dissertations published in Brazil.
http://bdtd.ibict.br/bdtd/
Saber lets you access Portuguese language theses and dissertations from the University of Sao Paulo.
http://www.teses.usp.br/

Spanish
Biblioteca Virutal offers a searchable collection of Spanish language dissertations.
http://www.cervantesvirtual.com/tesis/

Tesis Doctorals en Xarxa (TDX) gives you the option to search all participating Spanish universities or specify a particular university.
http://www.tdcat.cbuc.es/

Universia is a portal for various Spanish universities. To search library collections, select the Bibliotecas link.
http://biblio.universia.es/digitales/espanyolas/index.htm

Centro de Informacion Y Documentacion Cientifica gives you the option of searching for theses and dissertations published in Latin America.
http://pci204.cindoc.csic.es/cindoc/tesis.htm

Other Pathfinders and Resource Guides
Due to the complex nature of finding foreign theses and dissertations other libraries have also compiled finding aids. Listed below are a few useful samples.
University of Chicago Library
UCLA Library Guide
UNC University Libraries

Sources used included resource guides from the University of Chicago Library and the UCLA Library.
Last Updated 10/17/07